List of Planned Activities

In the space below, list the specific activities that you expect to engage in for your project. This list should be determined in consultation with your Supervising Instructor. Examples include attending lab meetings, reading and discussing research articles, writing a literature review, creating a new study, testing research participants, analyzing data, creating a poster, and so on.

Note: According to university policy, a student should work approximately three hours per week for each unit of independent study. Please keep this in mind when determining your list of activities.

End-of-Semester Requirements

At the end of the semester, you will be required to write a one-page paper about your Independent Study experience and to complete a short survey about it. These will be administered through a Canvas group that you will be added to once you register for Psych 190 or 290. Details will be provided in that Canvas Group.
